- International networking
- Groups and organisations: KKK, NPD, Thule Net

Websites

- Neo-Nazis, Holocaust deniers like Ernst Zündel etc. made use of websites early
- BBS and info phones move to the WWW
- Germany: ban of several far-right extremist groups and organisations in the 1990s - Internet used to made up for loss of structures
- Neonazi webrings, Anti-Antifa sites
- Little awareness and regulations: heil-hitler.de and sieg-heil.de could be registered without problems

Strategies for the USENET

USENET offers enormous opportunity for the Aryan Resistance to disseminate our message to the unaware and the ignorant. It is the only relatively uncensored (so far) free-forum mass medium which we have available.

Remember: our overall USENET strategy must be to repeat powerful themes OVER AND OVER AND OVER.

Tailor your messages for each group. Our ideology has myriad facets and the well-informed activist can extract something to fit onto just about every group.

- Milton Kleim, 1995
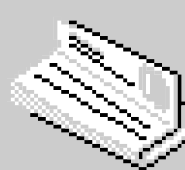

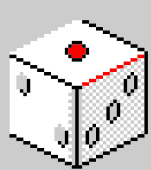

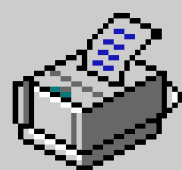

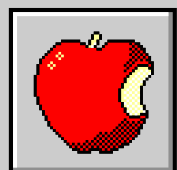

Back to Agenda Page

„The Internet has, for the first time, provided individuals and small organizations the means to effectively compete with the controlled media monopoly. The major television networks and the big publishing conglomerates no longer control what news the world will hear."

Talking Strategy

There is one thing that is particularly important, we support each other with small differences, five active users per forum are enough and we are in control of the contents of the topics and the course of the discussion.

- Mailbox BBS
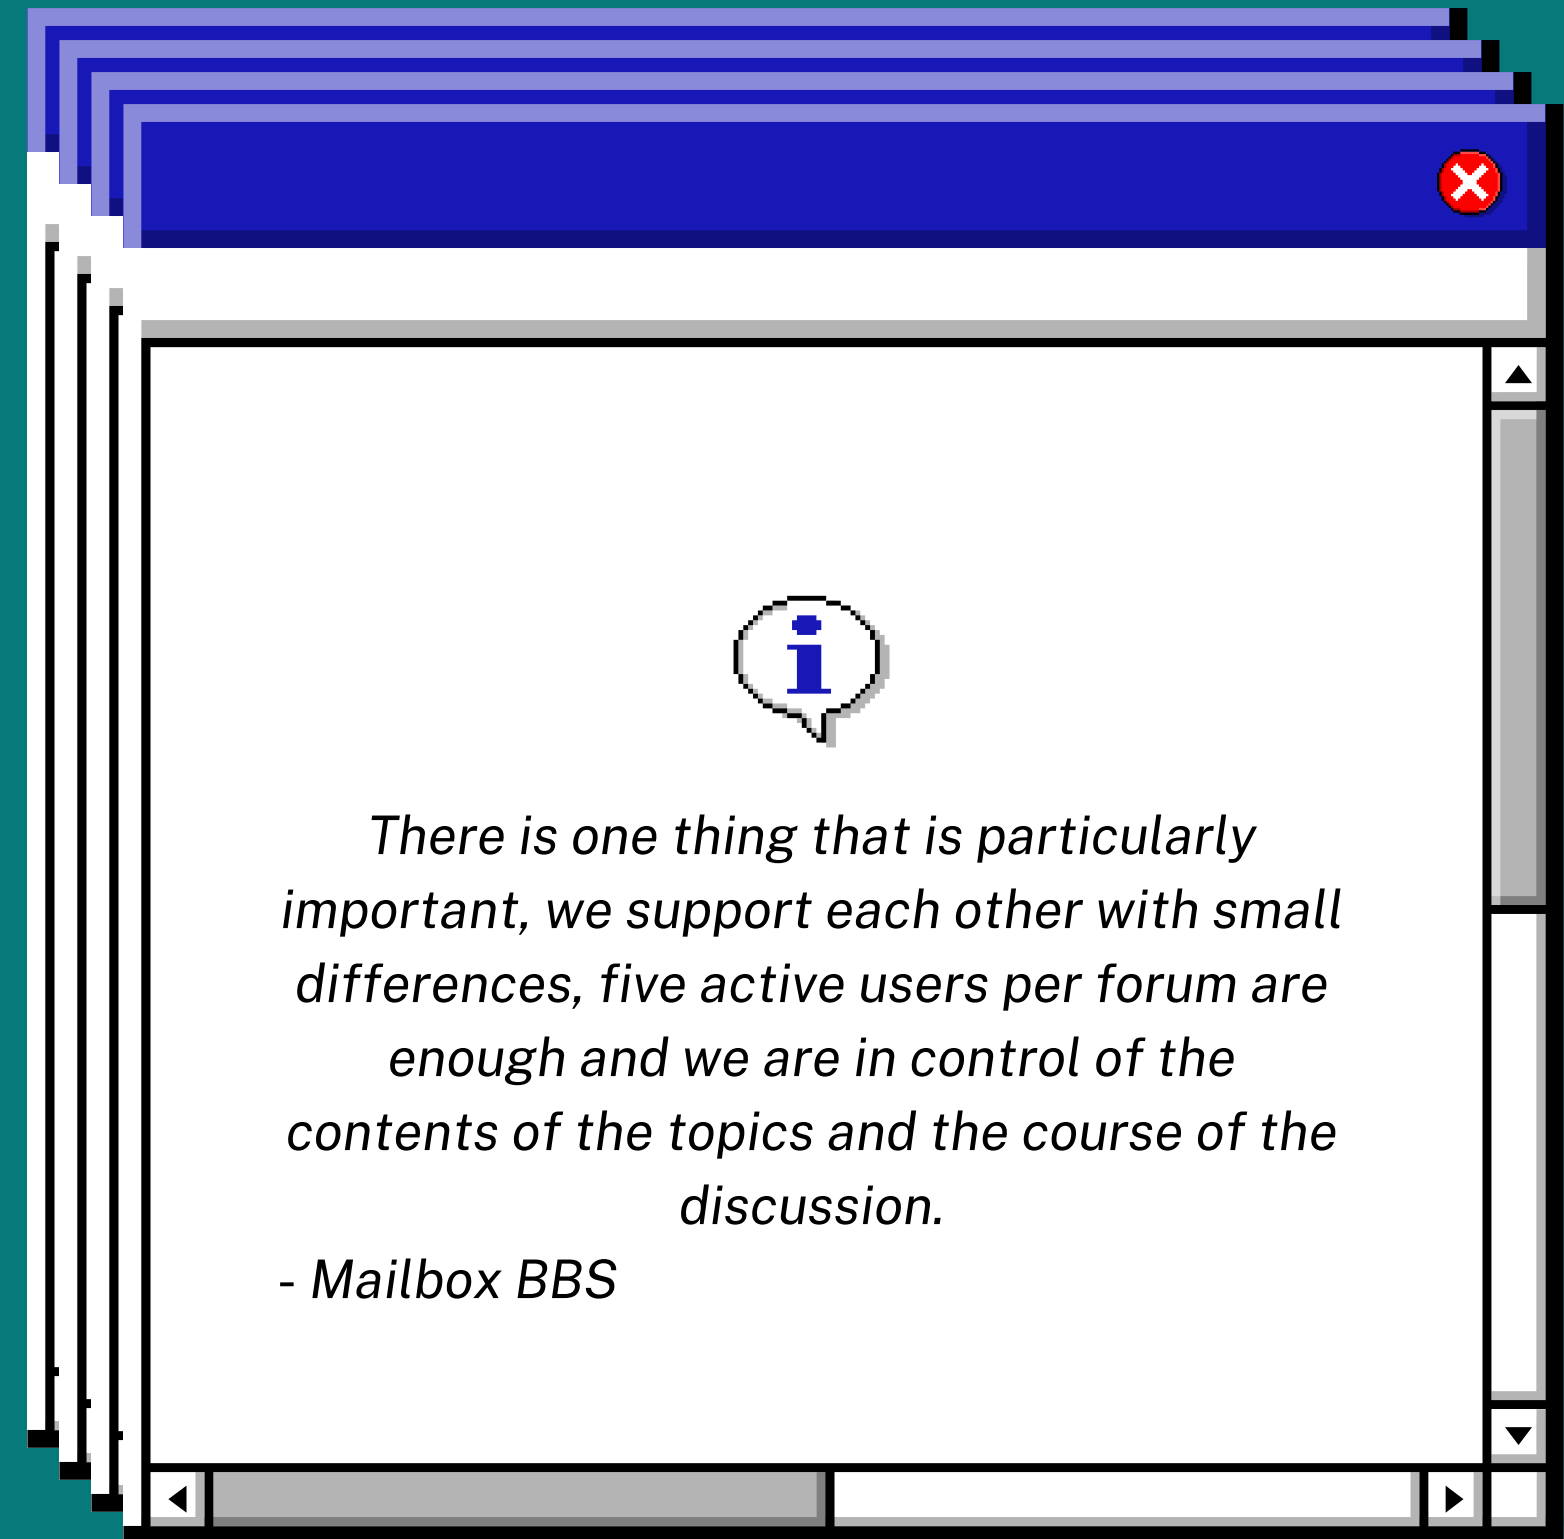

Newer Strategy Papers: "Handbook for Media Guerillas"
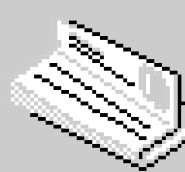

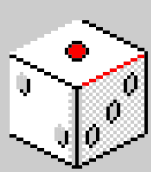

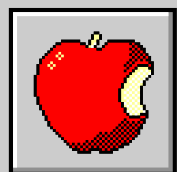

"You don't want to convince your adversary in discussions on the Internet, they're mostly stubborn idiots anyway. It's about the audience. And it's not about who's right, it's about who the audience thinks is right."

Newer Strategy Papers: Daily Stormer

„The goal is to continually repeat the same points, over and over and over and over again"

The unindoctrinated should not be able to tell if we are joking or not.

Options

The first thing that needs to be done is that everyone needs to get the hell off of Discord.

Delete your account, figure out how to remove the software from your computer.

You should have already been using a VPN and hopefully you were.

Then, my recommended replacement is Telegram.
